

The Rotten Society

Kiplang'at Vitalis Chemining'wa

Welcome to our society

The rotten era

Where valued most is revolution.

Not contemplating the outcome

The society where parity has faded away

Personal duty is already dead

No one cares about the other.

People are filled with pride and hatred

Only craving personal health and happiness

Thirst and hunger for wealth can't be quenched

Peace has been preempted

Love for one another no longer exists

The less fortunate suffer the most.

Obsessed with making their lives successful

Those in authority care less about their citizens

Tribalism and bigotry are daily psalms.

Look at the preachers.

Greedy for tithes, increasing their personal riches

Who should I trust? Since there's no one to look up to Youth have already lost their ways of life.

Deeply sank into alcoholism and drug abuse
Traffic cops do their work no more
But collect bribes instead
Corruption has taken over at an alarming rate.

Infidelity has taken route
I can't consider decorum anymore
It's lose for win
Rather than win or lose.

Society is devoid of morals
Acrid it is
Full of miasma
Saying no is a question that
Can't be deciphered
'Cause even the stakeholders
Are in the system
Outwitting the kinsmen
With sweet talk
The kinsmen are devoid of knowledge
I can't say no anymore!
'Cause it's a lose for win
Rather than win for lose!

Love

Dear love

Take my hand

Forget about the world.

I will love you like

You have never been loved before.

Look into my eyes

Always dream about us both

Together, we will conquer

And reach up to the skies.

No frowns, no tears

Just smiles and laughter.

We are just young lovers

But if God lets us,

We will get married after.

Let me shower you with compliments.

Your eyes sparkle like the stars

And your smile shines as bright as the sun.

We are just in our first chapter.

But our love story has just begun.

Now take my hand

Be my favourite

And surely I'll treat you better

I will love you

Like you have never been loved before
